

Shelf life is a minimum of 5 years unopened.

Some important tips in maximising the shelf-life of Osmo oils:

- When opened – decant what you want to use right away, it's a good idea to “under estimate” what you want to use, use that up then decant a bit more.
- Never work out of the can and never tip back any unused product, as there could be impurities in the exposed oil (e.g. saw dust, dust in the air etc.)
- If the remaining oil in the can is not going to be used for a while, cut a piece of glad wrap a bit bigger the lid size, push the glad wrap down on top of the oil then hammer the lid back on airtight.
- Always use a good quality clean brush to apply the finish. Make sure there is no residue from any previous finishes left in the brush, especially the base of the brush. Clean up is Turps.

- We strongly recommend the use of the Osmo can opener in preference to a screwdriver to open Osmo cans, this will reduce lid damage and help keep air and other impurities out.
